The World Health Organisation (WHO) on Monday marked a record high for the number of COVID-19 deaths in Iran, according to the AFP. So far, the coronavirus has killed almost 170,000 people around the world since it emerged in December. The epicentre of the coronavirus has now moved to the Middle East, with 7,736 new cases and 500 new deaths reported from Yemen, the highest on record. Iran has become a major source of the virus in the Middle East and Europe, as the country has the largest number of cases and deaths outside China. Iran's health minister, Saeed Namaki, reported on Monday that Iran had treated more than 200,000 coronavirus patients. "The figures for Iran surpass those of any other country, including China, and this is an indicator of the outbreak's seriousness in Iran," he said. Meanwhile, in Iraq, the country has reported 221 new cases and 3 more fatalities, one of which was related to the coronavirus. Confirmed COVID-19 cases in Iran stood at 7,533 on Monday, while death toll stood at 171. — AFP
